STATE OF KANSAS.

ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE,
TOPEKA, June 30, 1902.

The volunteer regiments of Kansas which were regularly mustered into the service of the United States—including the regiments of the Spanish and Philippine wars—number twenty-three. (In addition to these were two colored infantry regiments and four batteries of light artillery, one of the batteries being composed of colored men.) A printed record has been made of all the Kansas volunteer organizations except the Third, Fourth and Eighteenth Regiments. The Third and Fourth Kansas Regiments were organizations of mixed arms, enrolled in the summer of 1861 and reorganized and consolidated with other organizations in the spring of 1862. The infantry companies were transferred, and formed what was thereafter known as the Tenth Kansas Volunteer Infantry; the cavalry companies were transferred to other cavalry organizations then being formed, and the artillery companies constituted the First Kansas Battery. I have deemed it proper even at this late day—forty years after the service was rendered—to prepare and secure the printing of distinctive rolls of these organizations, and give them a place among the records of the Kansas volunteers.

The Eighteenth Kansas Cavalry was really but a battalion of four companies, mustered into the service of the United States on the 15th day of July, 1867, and serving four months against the hostile Indians along the western Kansas frontier. The rolls of the Eighteenth are also herewith submitted.

The Nineteenth Kansas Cavalry was organized and mustered in on the 20th day of October, 1868. The service rendered was also on the frontier against the Indians. This regiment was mustered out on the 18th of April, 1869. The rolls of the Nineteenth Kansas Cavalry were printed in the Adjutant General's report of 1870, but that report is now very rare, and it is but proper that a reprint be made. The rolls of the Nineteenth Regiment, hereafter submitted, are not a reprint of the edition of 1870, but are records newly compiled from the original muster-rolls of the regiment.

The records of the Third and Fourth Kansas Volunteers filed in this office could scarcely be considered records. I secured from the War Department at Washington a transcript of the records there on file—also very incomplete—and have made up the rolls from these and other sundry records. The preparation of the rolls of the Third and Fourth Regiments alone has required from me more than three months of close application and labor.

I have felt that this is a duty that should be delayed no longer, and that possibly, as a Kansas soldier, conversant with the early history of the Kansas volunteer regiments from association and personal experience, I might be better fitted to do the work. After forty years, memory becomes not always reliable, but I have done the work to the best of my ability, and submit the result, such as it is, to the charitable consideration of the old soldiers of Kansas.

Very respectfully,

S. M. FOX, Adjutant General

KANSAS VOLUNTEER REGIMENTS,

ROLL OF OFFICERS AND ENLISTED MEN.

THE THIRD AND FOURTH KANSAS VOLUNTEER REGIMENTS.

When the civil war began, in 1861, Kansas had just been admitted to the Union as a State, and the newly organized State government was scarcely in running order when it became necessary to raise troops to defend the border and respond to the requisition of the President for volunteers. However, two regiments were quickly placed in the field—the First and Second Kansas Infantry Regiments, whose bravery and heroism at the battle of Wilson Creek have given unfading luster to the name of Kansas. Both of these regiments were ordered out of the State as soon as organized. Had the State government been permitted to control the organization of the two succeeding regiments much confusion would have been avoided, and more systematic records would have been left of the organizations originally designated the Third and Fourth Kansas Volunteers. Senator James H. Lane, however, was commissioned a brigadier general of volunteers, and came to Kansas from Washington with a roving commission to raise regiments of volunteers. He proceeded in accordance with his own will, in a great measure independent of the State government, to raise troops; the Third and Fourth Kansas Volunteers were raised under his authority. These two regiments, together with the Fifth Kansas Cavalry, organized about the same time, constituted what was then known as “Lane’s Brigade.”

Elementary ideas of military organization seemed to prevail at the time the Third and Fourth Kansas regiments were organized, as they were regiments of mixed arms, mainly infantry, but each regiment possessing cavalry and artillery companies. The Fifth regiment was purely cavalry.

When the battle of Wilson Creek was fought (August 10, 1861) scarcely a battalion of these organizations had been recruited, but, expecting that Price and McCulloch would immediately follow their dearly bought victory by an invasion of Kansas, enlistments became rapid, and in a short time about 2500 men had been enrolled. By the presence of these newly organized troops along the Missouri border Kansas was saved from rebel invasion when Price moved north to the capture of Lexington. While not constituting a very imposing army, Price had recently had a specimen of Kansas fighting at Wilson Creek, and the presence of these Kansas regiments along the state line suggested a delay that he could ill afford to risk in his desire to reach the Missouri river before General Fremont could throw an opposing army in his way.

The Third and Fourth Kansas volunteer regiments were neither at any time complete organizations, and after the danger of an invasion by Price had passed recruiting for these organizations became very slow: the regiments being organized under state authority were securing most of the new enlistments. The new organizations presented more promising possibilities for position or promotion, and, beside, were cavalry regiments, and the experienced horsemen of the West preferred to ride when an opportunity to do so was at hand.

In the spring of 1862 the War Department ordered the reorganization and consolidation of the Third and Fourth Kansas regiments. This was done, the infantry companies forming a new regiment, thereafter known as the Tenth Kansas Volunteer Infantry. It would have been very proper to have designated the new consolidation as either the Third or Fourth Kansas Volunteers, instead of the Tenth, but both regiments thought their regimental designation the one to adopt, and to settle the contention the next vacant number was assigned to the reorganization. The cavalry companies were transferred to the Fifth, Sixth and Ninth Kansas Cavalry regiments, and the artillery companies were consolidated into the First Kansas Battery.

In following the history of the Third and Fourth Kansas Volunteers, confusion appears in the specific designation of several companies in both regiments. This confusion is explained by the fact that about January 1, 1862, certain companies were shifted about and the designating letter changed. That a clear understanding may be had, these changes are given in detail below. It will be understood that all references made to companies will be by using the designation last assigned and borne at the time the consolidation of the two regiments was made.

The changes made in designations in the Third Kansas regiment were as follows:

Captain Thomas Bickerton's artillery company, originally designated "Company G," lost its designating letter and went to the foot of the regimental roster as "Bickerton's Artillery Company."

Captain Snyder's infantry company, originally Company H, became Company G.

Captain Stevenson's infantry company, originally Company I, became Company H.

Captain Stewart's cavalry company, originally Company K, became Company I.

Captain Vansickle's cavalry company, originally "Vansickle's Independent Company of Scouts," and later Company L, Third Kansas, became Company K.

Companies A, B, C, D, E and F retained their original designation until the date of consolidation.

The changes made in the Fourth Kansas regiment were slight, and were as follows:

Captain Thomas Moonlight's artillery company, originally designated "Company D," lost its designating letter and went to the foot of the regimental roster as "Moonlight's Artillery Company."

Captain Zacheus Gower's company of the Sixth Kansas Cavalry was, by order dated December 31, 1861, transferred to the Fourth Kansas Volunteers and assigned as Company D.

All other companies of the Fourth Kansas retained their original designation. No Company K was ever organized in the Fourth Kansas.

At the date of consolidation, the disposition of the several companies of the Third and Fourth Kansas Volunteers was as follows:

THIRD KANSAS VOLUNTEERS.

Company A (consolidated with Company C) became Company C, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company B became Company F, Fifth Kansas Cavalry.

Company C (consolidated with Company A) became Company C, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company D (consolidated with Company H) became Company E, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company E became Company D, Fifth Kansas Cavalry.

Company F became Company I, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company G became Company D, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company H (consolidated with Company D) became Company E, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company I became Company C, Ninth Kansas Cavalry.

Company K became Company I, Sixth Kansas Cavalry.*

Captain Bickerton's Artillery Company was transferred to the First Kansas Battery.

FOURTH KANSAS VOLUNTEERS.

Company A (consolidated with Company H) became Company G, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company B became Company B, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company C became Company A, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company D, mustered out in accordance with letter of instruction, Department of Kansas, dated March 4, 1862.

Company E became Company A, Sixth Kansas Cavalry.

Company F became Company F, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company G became Company H, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company H (consolidated with Company A) became Company G, Tenth Kansas Infantry.

Company I was broken up, its officers were mustered out, and the company divided between Companies B, F, and H, Tenth Kansas Infantry, and First Kansas Battery.

The members of the Third and Fourth Kansas Volunteers were accounted for in the new organizations to which they were transferred as though they had served with the last organization from the beginning of their original term of service, no reference being given to the fact that the first part of their service had been rendered as members of the Third and Fourth Kansas regiments, or that such regiments ever existed.

Company I of the Third Kansas, transferred to the Sixth Kansas Cavalry as Company I of that organization, and later mustered out, and Company D of the Fourth Kansas Volunteers, mustered out at the date of the consolidation and not assigned to any other organization, have heretofore had no record as volunteer organizations. There are also a considerable number of men who were dropped from the original rolls by reason of casualty who have no place in the record of the volunteers.

As the Third and Fourth Kansas were original and distinct organizations, and performed brave and faithful service for eight months or more as such, it seems proper that a record should be made of them as distinctive regiments, and the individual records of the men recorded. Their service was rendered forty years ago; it is a tardy justice, and but few of the men recorded live to know that a place has been given them in the records of the civil-war regiments of Kansas.

Although a transcript of all the records of these regiments filed in the War Department has been secured, the records are very incomplete, and many manifest errors appear in the muster-rolls, but the original signature of the individual soldier nowhere appears, and a comparison cannot be made. When a name appears differently spelled in three places, it is difficult to guess which, if either, is the correct one. When "Hiram" appears as "Hyrum," and "Peter" appears as "Peetir," one wonders if "Wallis" should not be "Wallace" and "Dunkin" should not be "Duncan," but it is hardly safe to assume such to be the case.

The records as relates to the date of consolidation of the reorganized companies of the Third and Fourth Kansas are not absolutely certain. The consolidation was made in accordance with letter of instruction, Department of Kansas, *Claim being made that this company had been recruited for home defense, it was finally mustered out late in the summer of 1862. No record of it appears in the rolls of the Sixth Kansas Cavalry. The Company I there recorded was an entirely different organization, having been recruited by Captain Blake in 1863.

dated February 20, 1862. The infantry companies of the Third were mustered for consolidation on February 28, 1862, and those of the Fourth on March 4, 1862. The consolidation was effected April 3, 1862.

The cavalry companies were transferred about the same time. Company I of the Third was transferred to the Ninth Kansas Cavalry on March 27, 1862.

The artillery companies were consolidated by authority of Special Orders No. 42, District of Kansas, dated April 24, 1862. The organization of the consolidated battery (First Kansas Battery) was effected about June 1, 1862. A previous attempt had been made to transfer Captain Bickerton's Artillery Company of the Third Kansas to the First Kansas Infantry as an artillery organization, and to break up Captain Moonlight's Artillery Company of the Fourth and distribute it among the companies of the same regiment as infantry; but dissatisfaction being created, by the advice of General Sturgis the order was modified, and the consolidation was made in accordance with Special Orders No. 42, above referred to.

Third Regiment, Kansas Volunteers.

The Third Kansas Volunteer Regiment was organized by Gen. J. H. Lane in the summer of 1861. It was a mixed organization, composed of infantry, cavalry and artillery companies. In the spring of 1862 this regiment was reorganized, the infantry companies, with those of the Fourth regiment, were consolidated into the organization thereafter designated the Tenth Kansas Volunteer Infantry; Companies D and F were transferred to the Fifth Kansas Cavalry; Company I was transferred to the Ninth Kansas Cavalry, and the artillery company (originally Company C), was transferred to the First Kansas Battery.

The Eighteenth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry (Battalion).

After the close of the civil war and the muster-out of the volunteer regiments, the Regular Army was not sufficient to afford the necessary protection against the depredations of hostile Indians along the Western frontier. Indian raids upon the Western settlers were frequent, and their protection became a matter of deep solicitude. Companies were organized, under the provisions of the state militia law, among the frontiersmen, which performed brave and most efficient service. Under the authority of the War Department, in July, 1867, a volunteer cavalry battalion of four companies was organized and mustered into the United States service: this organization was designated the Eighteenth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry. It was mustered in on the 15th day of July, and immediately took the field. This organization consisted of 358 officers and enlisted men, and was commanded by Major Horace L. Moore, of Lawrence, late lieutenant colonel of the Fourth Arkansas Volunteer Cavalry. The regiment served four months, and met the Indian marauders in several sharp engagements, which always resulted to the disadvantage of the hostiles. A number of men were killed and wounded in the battalion, the loss in casualties being about ten per cent. The battalion was mustered out on the 15th day of November, 1867, having always received the commendation of the Regular officers under whose observation they served, for bravery and efficiency.

ROLL OF THE ## Nineteenth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry.

---

Organized October 20, 1868.

Mustered out April 18, 1869.

The Nineteenth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry.

In the spring of 1868 Indian depredations were renewed, and in June the Cheyennes made a raid into the State as far as Council Grove. In August a raid was made on the settlers of the Solomon and Saline valleys; men, women and children were murdered, and other fearful atrocities committed. In September Governor Crawford called into the State's service five companies of cavalry, to be organized from the militia, for service on the frontier. These companies furnished their own horses, but were supplied with ordnance equipment and subsisted by the general government. These companies were immediately organized and at the post of duty. Their presence along the border of the western settlements was salutary, and but few depredations were committed while the sturdy frontiersmen remained in the field. In October General Sheridan, whose energetic presentation of the matter seems to have awakened the officials at the War Department, received instruction from the Secretary of War to raise a regiment of Kansas volunteer troops for six months' service. On October 9 he made his request to Governor Crawford; on October 10 the governor issued his proclamation, and ten days later the Nineteenth Kansas Volunteer Cavalry was mustered into the service of the United States. Governor Crawford resigned, and took the command of the regiment in person. The regiment served under General Sheridan while he conducted the energetic campaign of the winter of 1868 and 1869. No severe fighting resulted, but the Indians were given no rest. The winter was very severe; violent storms were frequent and the snow deep, and the hardships endured by the troops were terrible. The Nineteenth Kansas was mustered out at Fort Hays on the 18th day of April, 1869.
